LEGAL NOTICE - DISCOVERY

EDUC ALLIANCE

ADITIONAL LEGAL INFORMATION

1. General Conditions

By accessing and using this website and any web page on the EDUC-Alliance's domain, you are a user. Being a user implies knowing and fully accepting the current legal terms and conditions whenever you access the website. To access certain content, you may need to accept additional conditions of use.

The EDUC-Alliance publishes all amendments to these conditions of use on this web page so that the current version is always accessible.

2. Website owner

The EDUC-Alliance is a group of several universities from Europe, working together on different projects related to the educational environment. EDUC-Alliance is the owner of the website and services covered in this notice and conditions. In order to know more about the EDUC-Alliance identity and contact, please visit https://www.educalliance.eu .

3. Liability and obligations of the EDUC-Alliance

Liability for content

The EDUC-Alliance is the owner of the content published, which it is responsible for managing on its website. The content is published via information systems that provide all the guarantees required in the current legislation with regards to availability, integrity, confidentiality, authenticity and traceability.

All regulations regarding privacy and personal data protection are observed when the content published may contain identified or identifiable personal data. See the Security and Privacy Centre for all the EDUC-Alliance 's privacy and personal data protection measures, policies and regulations.

All content is published in open formats or formats widely accepted in information and communications technology.

Liability for external links

The EDUC-Alliance includes links to webpages and services, some owned by it, others belonging to third parties. The EDUC-Alliance accepts no liability for the content of third-party pages and services. Including links to such content does not entail approval, support or recognition of any type. Such links are only included for informational purposes to provide additional sources of information.

The EDUC-Alliance accepts no liability for the availability or legality of the content and services of the links. The EDUC-Alliance does its best to ensure that its own standards of quality and legal compliance are met when publishing third-party links.

Liability for incoming external links to the EDUC-Alliance 's website and services

All third-party web pages and services linking to the content, services and pages of the EDUC-Alliance must do so in a manner that does not distort the content published or its original meaning. Third parties are not permitted to not make partial references to content of the EDUC-Alliance or partially reproduce it on third-party web pages or use corporate identity characteristics (name, logo, official references, etc.) without express approval from the EDUC-Alliance.

Third parties linking to content of the EDUC-Alliance must acknowledge authorship and observe any associated industrial or intellectual property rights held by the EDUC-Alliance.

Liability for technical aspects

The EDUC-Alliance makes all reasonable endeavours to offer a quality and stable service. The EDUC-Alliance applies the technical, human and organisational measures required in its IT systems, in accordance with the classifying of information as an asset, and it hopes no damage or inconvenience is caused to users through the use of these systems.

However, the EDUC-Alliance accepts no liability for any possible consequences arising from accidents, lack of availability, errors in the operation of its services, or possible adverse effects in its equipment or the equipment of users, or any effect arising from events outside of the EDUC-Alliance 's direct control or occurring by force majeure.

4. User liability and obligations

Conditions of access

Access to content on the EDUC-Alliance's website is free and open in all public areas. By accessing this content, you accept the conditions applicable at any time published in these general conditions of use or in any applicable special conditions of use.

Some areas on the website or the domain of the EDUC-Alliance may be subject to special conditions of use. Any special conditions of use will be specified on the affected pages and will prevail over these general conditions of use where discrepancies arise between the two sets of conditions.

User registration

The content published by the EDUC-Alliance is usually public and free to access, without any type of user registration required. Access to some services requires prior registration of the user. This registration constitutes an instance of personal data processing logged in the register of processing activities owned by the EDUC-Alliance. See the Data protection and privacy section for more information on this register. Information on processing is always provided when user registration is initiated, prior to data processing.

User obligations

When using this service and its contents, you must observe the legal conditions established in this document and any other condition established on the web pages and services of the EDUC-Alliance. When using the elements described, you must:

- Provide truthful and accurate registration data corresponding exclusively to your identity and personal information.
- Exclusively and personally use your own credentials. The EDUC-Alliance accepts no liability for the misuse or loss of user credentials.
- Behave in accordance with the rules of behaviour established by law, such as observing rights to privacy and honour and any other fundamental right, regardless of the means used. You must not make any type of commercial, advertising or promotional use of the elements.
- Observe the current information and communications technology regulations.

- Make a reasonably use of the information and services published, observing the original meaning and intent of the services.
- Accept liability for any loss or damage caused to the EDUC-Alliance 's pages or services.
- Notify of any security breach or incorrect operation of the pages and services of the EDUC-Alliance.

Use restrictions

By using the web pages and services provided by the EDUC-Alliance, you fully accept the associated conditions. You cannot partially accept these conditions. If you do not accept them, you must stop accessing or using the website or service. The EDUC-Alliance may restrict your use if you do not comply with these conditions.

5. Security measures

The information systems on the EDUC-Alliance website and their security measures are described in the Privacy Policy.

6. Intellectual and industrial property rights

The content on the EDUC-Alliance's website, including its design, code, audiovisual elements, graphics, logos, trademarks and other distinctive features, are protected by intellectual and industrial property rights owned by the EDUC-Alliance. You are prohibited from making any commercial or industrial use of these rights without express authorisation from the owner.

Where information is published in open format (Open Data website, Creative Commons licensed content, etc.), this circumstance is explicitly specified next to the information. Use of this content is governed by the published legal conditions.

Infringement of rights owned by the EDUC-Alliance may give rise to legal actions in accordance with the current legislation on intellectual and industrial property and other related regulations.

7. Data protection

Published data

All personal data that the EDUC-Alliance receives via its web pages and services are processed in accordance with the terms of the different processing activities established in the Privacy policy. The first time your personal data is collected for processing, you are informed of the conditions of the processing and how to exercise your rights and other related information in accordance with the current privacy and personal data protection legislation.

The personal data published on the pages and services of the EDUC-Alliance is provided for informational purposes as a source of public or private data, depending on its type. Public data arises from the administrative processes established in the legislation on administrative procedures between citizens and the public sector or from professional contact information. The maximum information transparency possible is always sought. Personal data provided via access restricted to a certain person with a specific profile is destined only for use concerning this person. This data must not be disclosed, partially or totally, without obtaining adequate authorisation and verifying compliance with the current privacy and personal data legislation.

Cookies

When you browse pages of the EDUC-Alliance, cookies are used for the actions described in the Cookies Policy of this Website.

8. Dispute resolution

You undertake to submit any dispute related to the EDUC-Alliance 's web pages and services to the courts of each country which EDUC-Alliance members belong for first-instance proceedings and to the corresponding review court for appeal proceedings. You expressly waive any other jurisdiction that may be competent.